

a BIG WEEKEND AT THE CIVIC

Eagerly anticipated as the cultural highlight of the winter, The New Zealand International Film Festival now lightens up the autumn with this inaugural offering of extra events. At NZIFF we are keenly aware of a wealth of international cinema and stellar retrospectives well worth touting to a city of avid filmgoers. And what could make a filmgoer more avid than the fabulous new 4K digital projection system at The Civic? Don't wait until July to check out our contention that The Civic is the grandest, most glorious cinema in the land. Following our spectacular weekend we have a wealth of more intimate cinematic events to offer in the comfort of the newly refurbished, re-invigorated and fully digitised Academy Cinemas. And Rialto Cinemas will accommodate our lustrous 35mm film prints from Iran.

Lawrence of Arabia

David Lean's 1962 biopic remains the benchmark in epic action cinema: literate, dynamic and visually stupendous. Premiered at a Special 50th Anniversary screening at Cannes last year, the brand-new 4K digital restoration presents Lean's 1988 Director's Cut as never seen before. The new state-of-the-art 4K projection system at The Civic has found its perfect showpiece.

"Peter O'Toole made an unforgettable debut in this magnificent epic by David Lean... O'Toole is T.E. Lawrence, the brilliant and mercurial Arabist and aesthete who as a serving officer in WW1 found himself leading an Arab revolt against the Turks in the British interest, but failed to create the national self-determination he promised his followers... The blackface casting of Alec Guinness looks ill-judged now, especially compared with Omar Sharif's spirited, ingenuous performance, but what red-blooded passion this film has and what formal brilliance... This is a movie with the excitement of a cavalry charge." — Peter Bradshaw, The Guardian

"Sony Pictures' new 50th-anniversary restoration seems fresh and modern, in its political themes and its stunning visual clarity... But the film holds up not only for its historical parallels but also because it's thrilling and, in its present incarnation, it looks breathtaking." — Fred Kaplan, NY Times

Kon-Tiki

Kon-Tiki combines high adventure at sea with a fascinating portrait of one of Norway's national heroes, anthropologist/explorer/filmmaker Thor Heyerdahl. The country's most expensive film ever, boasting breathtaking filming on the oceans, it has been a blockbuster on Scandinavian screens and was one of the five finalists in the Foreign Language category at this year's Oscars. NZIFF presents the New Zealand premiere screening on the giant Civic screen such a spectacle cries out for.

"Norway's enjoyably supersized Kon-Tiki, follows the real-life adventures of explorer Thor Heyerdahl, who, in 1947, embarked [with a crew of six] on an eccentric mission across the Pacific Ocean, from Peru to Polynesia, on a wooden raft. His goal was to prove that Polynesia had been discovered and settled by ancient Peruvians, and not by Asians, as went the leading scientific belief... The ocean is a central character of Kon-Tiki, occasionally outshining the film's raft-bound human characters, but mostly bolstering their seabound drama to a level of exciting entertainment... The film excels in aquatic special effects. The motley crew faces more than one shark encounter: each sequence is breathtaking, even heartpoundingly visceral." — Beth Hanna, Indiewire

Guys and Dolls

Frank Loesser's boisterous, tune-filled adaptation of stories by Prohibition-era newspaper man and humourist Damon Runyon is one of the wonders of the Broadway musical, perennially fresh and gloriously free of sentimentality and cant. Big stakes gambler Sky Masterson (Marlon Brando) pursues non-sensense Salvation Army Sister Sarah Brown (lovely Jean Simmons) for a bet. Meanwhile nightclub chanteuse Miss Adelaide (Broadway star Vivian Blaine) presses another gambling man, longstanding fancé Nathan Detroit (Frank Sinatra, naturally nonchalant) to name the day.

Producer Sam Goldwyn's stellar 1955 adaptation of the Broadway hit was seen as rashly unconventional in the day. Writer-director Joe Mankiewicz (All About Eve) had never directed a musical, and Brando and Simmons, though noted for their smouldering chemistry in Desiree, were hardly noted for their singing voices. Frank Sinatra and Vivian Blaine were much easier choices for the public to swallow. It was a hit regardless and it remains an ingenious and highly entertaining concoction these several decades (and countless stage revivals) later. Catch this single giant screen presentation in a spotless digital transfer.

"A musical fairly glittering with intelligence and invention... Inspired casting lending an emotional depth rare in musicals." — Tom Milne, Time Out

Check out the register of international renegade talent signed up by Ant and his Austin partner-in-crime for this late-night extravaganza. Don't miss your best ever chance to check out this who's who of alt-exploitation with a crowd.

"From Poe to Lovecraft, from King to Barker, from EC Comics to Night Gallery, some of the best pieces the horror genre has ever offered up have arrived in short form—and herein lies the appeal and power of the mighty anthology film. Inspired by the classic 'A-is-for-Apple' children's book trope, Ant Timpson (New Zealand film archivist/programmer extraordinaire) and Tim League (of Drafthouse Films) have culled together a woolly bunch of 26 favorite genre filmmakers, assigned each of them a letter of the alphabet, and let their twisted minds run wild!

These few insane minutes apiece beautifully range wildly in tone, pacing, and scope, as the diverse assortment of directors includes Ti West (The Innkeepers), Ben Wheatley (Kill List), Nacho Vigalondo (Timecrimes), Adam Wingard & Simon Barrett (You're Next), Jason Eisener (Hobo With a Shotgun), Jon Schnepf (TV's Metacalypse), and even Marvel comic artist Kaare Andrews. You'll love some, detest others, and likely be offended by at least half of the shorts, leaving The ABCs of Death as one of the most unique and conversation-starting experiences to grace theaters in a long, long while." — Cinefamily

From Up on Poppy Hill

English version | Kokurikozaka kara

Japan | 2011 | 91 minutes | DCP
Director: Miyazaki Goro | Screenplay: Miyazaki Hayao, Niwa Keiko. Based on the graphic novel by Takahashi Chizuru and Sayama Tetsuro | Music: Takebe Satoshi | Voices: Gillian Anderson, Sarah Bolger (Um), Beau Bridges, Jamie Lee Curtis, Bruce Dern, Christina Hendricks, Ron Howard, Emily Osment, Anton Yelchin (Shun)

The latest classic from Studio Ghibli is the tender story of two enterprising children, schoolgirl Umi and her dashing friend Shun. Both are being raised by widowed parents. It's 1963 and Japan has emerged from the long shadow of the war and is preparing to welcome the world to the Olympics. Umi's time is taken up looking after the family boarding house and taking care of others, especially her impossibly silly little sister. Shun is the editor of the school newspaper and he's running a campaign to save the school's funky old clubhouse from developers. Like the best Ghibli films, Poppy Hill is exquisitely attuned to childish resourcefulness and emotion—and does not reserve its many treasures for children alone.

For those non Japanese-speakers daunted by the prospect of reading the subtitles to their junior cohorts at last year's NZIFF screenings, we bring you the brand-new English-dubbed version. — Bill Gosden

"Thoroughly uplifting... A gentle, funny, visually gorgeous story about teenage love and the aftermath of war." — David Larsen, Ten Best Films of 2012, NZ Listener

Antiviral

Canada | 2012 | 108 minutes | DCP
Director/Screenplay: Brandon Cronenberg | Photography: Karim Hussain | Editor: Matthew Hannam | Music: E.C. Woodley | With: Caleb Landry Jones, Sarah Gadon, Douglas Smith, Malcolm McDowell | Censors rating tbc | Festivals: Cannes, Toronto, London 2012

The feature debut of Brandon Cronenberg, son of David, is a clammy forensic foray into satirically loaded body horror, a chilly projection into a near-future metropolis where the viral infections of the stars are copyright-protected and sold to fans. Celebrity cold sores, anyone?

"Antiviral, an eye-widening delve into conceptual science fiction, has the gruesome verve of Cronenberg Sr.'s early work, and morbidity to match. It won't do to shrug it off as a jejune clone of dad's low-budget body-horror pictures (Shivers, Rabia), because there's real muscle in its ideas, a potent kind of satirical despair, and a level of craft you rarely expect from a first-timer... The movie is more thinkpiece than thriller, and the plot sometimes coasts a little, but it has a horrific Orwellian suggestiveness and the coldly arresting style to back it up. Like all the best science fiction, it speaks directly to our age and feels like a hideous warning." — Tim Robey, Daily Telegraph

The Deep

Djúpið

Iceland | 2012 | 93 minutes | DCP
Director/Screenplay: Ólafur Assayas | Photography: Bergsteinn Björgúlfsson | Editors: Sverrir Kristjánsson, Elísabet Ronaldsdóttir | Music: Ben Frost, Daniel Bjarnason | With: Ólafur Darri Ólafsson, Jóhann G. Jóhannsson, Þróstur Leif Gunnarsson, Björn Thors, Stefnir Hallur Stefánsson | In Icelandic with English subtitles | M offensive language | Festivals: Toronto 2012

2013 has already been a singular year for peril at sea in the movies, but no other film conveys against-the-odds survival with the terrifying conviction achieved by director Baltasar Kormákur in The Deep. The improbable true story of a ship-wrecked fisherman who swam for six hours in a stormy, icy (5-6°C) ocean offers a powerful, elemental depiction of an incident that still baffles many commentators. Kormákur (101 Reykjavik, Jar City, The Sea), whose talents have recently been co-opted by Hollywood, is a laconic poet of Icelandic character (liquor ingestion included). He eschews movie heroics to focus on Guðlaugur Fridthósson's ordeal and his resilient ordinariness. The ordeal was by no means over with his rescue. The unprepossessing, unassuming young fisherman was ill-prepared to become the object of widespread public speculation and intense scientific investigation that ensued. How on earth did his body withstand such conditions? Was he even telling the truth? — Bill Gosden

After May

Après mai, aka Something in the Air

France | 2012 | 122 minutes | DCP
Director/Screenplay: Olivier Assayas | Photography: Eric Gautier | Editors: Luc Barrier, Mathilde Van De Moortel | With: Clément Métyer, Lola Créton, Félix Armand, Carole Combes | In French, English and Italian, with English subtitles | Censors rating tbc | Festivals: Venice, Toronto, New York 2012, Rotterdam 2013 | Best Screenplay, Venice Film Festival 2012

After May (aka Something in the Air) is filmmaker Olivier Assayas's (Summer Hours, Carlos) lyrical and reflective memoir of his own youthful wavering in the aftermath of the student-led protests that convulsed France in May 1968. Love and desire, the search for meaningful work and the fragmentation of radical politics pull him and his circle this way and that, while a less idealistic era of individual self-realisation edges into place.

"An ensemble drama with a pleasingly light touch, it looks back with warmth and candour at the lives of these young people as they confront their beliefs, their loves and their ambitions head-on. So it's a coming-of-age story for all time in one sense, but the special ideas and idealism of the early 1970s mean that these characters' horizons are forever expanding and their choices seemingly infinite... It's a captivating and fresh snapshot of a well-documented time." — Dave Calhoun, Time Out London

NZIFF ♥ Docs

NZIFF has been a champion of documentaries on New Zealand screens for as long as anyone can remember. Last year's programme screened 60. Built on the principle of sharing box office income with filmmakers, we provide one of the few opportunities around for filmmakers to launch their works locally and earn a few dollars in the process. Which means we're spoiled for choice — and this winter's selection is already looking fabulous. Catch up first with three which, for various reasons, eluded our programmers last winter and turned out to be amongst the most striking (and awarded) documentaries of the year.

The Queen of Versailles

USA | 2012 | 104 minutes | HD
Director: Lauren Greenfield | Photography: Tom Hurwitz | Editor: Victor Livingston | Music: Jeff Beal | Documentary Directing Award, Sundance Film Festival 2012

"A succulently entertaining movie that invites you to splash around in the dreams and follies of folks so rich they're the one percent of the one percent." — Owen Gleiberman, Entertainment Weekly

"Meet Jackie, former Mrs Florida 1993 and current wife of David Siegel, the self-styled king of a vast timeshare empire. She loves her husband, eight children and shopping. A leggy blond teetering on high heels, Jackie is thrilled to show us her work in progress, the largest single-family home in America, modelled on the palace of Versailles but arguably more lavish... Then the financial crisis of 2008 hit... but Jackie soldiers on with a bright smile. One wonders what it will take to wake this queen from her American dream." — Hot Docs 2012

"Everything about The Queen of Versailles, a documentary both sharply observant and deliciously funny, is jumbo-sized—the riches, the rags, his ego, her breasts, their steroidal pursuit of happiness... The Queen commands our attention throughout, becoming almost a figurehead of the nation's personality, often ridiculous but always compelling: shallow and shrewd, tough and generous, farcical and fun." — Rick Groen, Globe and Mail

The World Before Her

Canada | 2012 | 91 minutes | HD
Director: Nisha Pahuja | Editor: David Kazalia | Music: Ken Myhr | In Hindi and English, with English subtitles | Best Documentary, Tribeca Film Festival 2012 | Best Canadian Documentary, Hot Docs 2012

"In Nisha Pahuja's brilliant study of women's choices in modern India, two vastly different movements claim to promote female empowerment. One is the Miss India pageant, the other the women's branch of militant fundamentalist Hinduism. Pahuja got unprecedented access to both. Backstage at the pageant, young women who yearn for stardom go through the paces of objectification; the competition's legs component will blow your mind. But don't assume the Hindu militants are training young women into a life of servility. Yes, eventually, they'll marry and make meals for their husbands. But right now they're learning to use guns and to hate Christians and Muslims. Nor are these young women unsophisticated. When asked if she isn't sacrificing her cultural roots by entering the pageant, one hopeful retorts, 'Do you ask Americans who are doing yoga if they're being Indianized?' ... Don't miss it." — Susan G. Cole, Now Magazine

"The World Before Her, winner of top prizes at Hot Docs and the Tribeca Film Festival, comes with a pitch so irresistible that it's almost gimmicky: Indian beauty camp or boot camp? In practice, Nisha Pahuja's documentary turns out to be a thought-provoking film that examines women's limited choices in a patriarchal country reeling from the contradictions of rapid modernization." — Liam Lacey, Globe and Mail

The House I Live In

USA | 2012 | 108 minutes | DigiBeta
Director: Eugene Jarecki | Photography: Sam Cullinan, Derek Hallquist | Editor: Paul Frost | Grand Jury Prize, Documentary, Sundance Film Festival 2012

Grand Jury Prize winner for the Best US Documentary at Sundance last year, Eugene Jarecki's The House I Live In is a cogent, condensed study of the 'war on drugs' and its insidious role in the socio-economic break down of America. The analysis is methodical; the evidence grounded in the testimony of offenders and also their antagonists, cops who have seen police work progressively degraded by the incentives attached to easy drug busts.

"Working as a superb investigative journalist, Jarecki demonstrates all the ways that the 'war on drugs' has become futile... but also how it is now an unstoppable industry, with privatized prisons run as economic engines. Jarecki talks to convicts, corrections officers, judges, and—in a fantastic interview—David Simon, creator of The Wire, who argues that the targeting of minorities, fused with mandatory sentencing, has turned the war on drugs into 'a holocaust in slow motion.'" — Owen Gleiberman, Entertainment Weekly

"This urgent and formidably smart movie—perhaps the year's most important political documentary—has opened minds and changed laws already." — Tim Robey, Daily Telegraph
